

ABSTRACT

A capacitor unit (15) used as an auxiliary power source is structured by a plurality of series connected capacitors that have an 5 initial dispersion of characteristics controlled within a predetermined value. During charging, the capacitor unit (15) is monitored if a voltage of the entire capacitor unit (15) is not exceeding a predetermined value. This prevents each capacitor from being charged at a voltage exceeding a withstand voltage.